

METHOD OF SUPPRESSING GENE EXPRESSION IN PLANTS

Abstract

The introduction of DNA episomes into plant cells to reduce or prevent the expression of endogenous nuclear or chromosomal genes is described. Geminivirus vectors to provide systemic silencing of an endogenous plant gene in a treated plant are described.